It’s impossible to put a true value on the Antiques Roadshow

DOROTHY ROBERTSON

S
imilarly, who can put a price on the experience? An item worth barely a few pounds sold for £20,000, but its own collector would have baulked at the idea of selling it to anyone else. The Julien’s charity auction of celebrities’ memorabilia was a genuine example of the point being made. The most expensive piece was a shirt worn by Bob Dylan at a concert in 1965, which sold for £35,000. Yet it’s impossible to put a value on the experience of owning such an iconic piece of history.

With Trump in charge, America faces an economic recession

NED GABINER

There’s no question that the US economy is in a recession. The US economy has not been in recession since 2008, but the current downturn is much more severe and widespread. The US economy is facing a number of challenges, including the ongoing trade war with China, rising interest rates, and a decline in consumer spending.

After years of decline under Obama, a new era of lower taxes, less red tape and more growth?

WILL DELLO-ROBERTSON on The Financial Times

The US economy is facing a number of challenges, including the ongoing trade war with China, rising interest rates, and a decline in consumer spending.

A bleak existence

Sebastian Castel on The Financial Times

The US economy is facing a number of challenges, including the ongoing trade war with China, rising interest rates, and a decline in consumer spending.

A grave threat to the freedom of the press

JACOB REES-MOGG

Newspapers will be unable to compete with Section 606 of the Crime and Courts Act is passed

The act will make it impossible for newspapers to compete with the electrical/Electronic Media. The British press has always been the best at reporting the news. Now, with the passing of this act, it will be impossible for newspapers to compete with the electrical/Electronic Media. The British press has always been the best at reporting the news. Now, with the passing of this act, it will be impossible for newspapers to compete with the electrical/Electronic Media.